

COVID-19 Death Trend per County as of 4/29/2020

Death trends from COVID-19 are represented among Washington counties. A significant amount of COVID-19 cases tend to be elderly and most nursing homes have a confirmed or suspected case of coronavirus. As of April 7th, 221 COVID-19 deaths, or more than half of the state's total, were associated with long-term care facilities in the state. This suggests a demand for constant coordination and supply of resources within our welfare system to reduce incidence and mortality. It is imperative a public health approach be taken to maximize reduction of mortality. Mortality rate is represented via red-blue divergent color scheme.
